

Who gets to belong?

Being invited is a start. Belonging means we can take part, contribute and feel part of the group.

1 PERSON

What does the person want to do? Ask what works for them. Do not guess their abilities.

2 BARRIER

What gets in the way? Look at the rules, space, information, equipment, pace or choices.

3 REDESIGN

What could change so the person can contribute to the shared goal? Try it, ask and improve it.

A model to try

A player wants to understand the game. The rules are spoken quickly over music. Pause the music, show the steps and model a practice round. Ask what is clearer and what still needs changing.

Barrier scenario cards

Choose one. Name the person's goal, the barrier and a change. Explain how your change helps real participation.

The shared route

A team puzzle uses clues on a route with steps and narrow spaces. Some players cannot reach the clues.

Shared goal: Everyone helps solve the same puzzle.

Person wants to... / Barrier... / We could change...

Rules in a rush

A game's rules are spoken once, quickly, with music playing. Some players miss the directions or are learning the language.

Shared goal: Everyone can understand and make choices in the game.

Person wants to... / Barrier... / We could change...

One way to answer

A group must explain its plan in a long handwritten paragraph. Some people have ideas but need a different way to show them.

Shared goal: Everyone helps explain the plan and its reasons.

Person wants to... / Barrier... / We could change...

Fast voices first

A class takes ideas from whoever calls out first. Some people need more thinking time or communicate in another way.

Shared goal: Everyone has a real way to influence the decision.

Person wants to... / Barrier... / We could change...

One celebration for all

A class event assumes every family celebrates the same occasion. Its only activity asks everyone to describe how they celebrate it.

Shared goal: Everyone can learn and contribute without pretending or explaining private beliefs.

Person wants to... / Barrier... / We could change...

No pause allowed

A team challenge has no breaks. Some people need to rest, manage pain or reduce noise. Nobody should have to explain a private reason.

Shared goal: Everyone can contribute, rest and rejoin the shared task.

Person wants to... / Barrier... / We could change...

Does fair mean the same?

Later lesson: compare the plans. Equality gives the same; equity responds to barriers; accessibility builds in ways to take part. These can overlap.

Show an explanation

Same: everyone writes by hand. Support: a scribe when needed. Design: spoken, written, drawn and supported responses from the start.

Ask: How can everyone explain the same idea?

Reach the shared goal

Same: one distance and a heavy ball. Support: a suitable ball or distance. Design: reachable targets, equipment and ways to send the ball, with individual support.

Ask: How can the shared challenge stay meaningful?

Have a say

Same: ten seconds each to speak. Support: more thinking time or a communication tool. Design: think first; speak, draw, point or write, with support available.

Ask: Is equal speaking time enough to contribute?

Understand a field trip

Same: one small-print sheet. Support: a translated version. Design: clear print, a visual schedule and an accessible digital version, plus requested support.

Ask: How will we check that families can use it?

Our belonging commitments

Choose two actions we can actually try. Adults make sure access and safety are protected; inclusion is not a vote.

Before our next shared activity, we will...

ACTION 1

We will change:

So people can:

ACTION 2

We will change:

So people can:

Check, listen and change again

We will try this during: _____

We will check back: _____

What helped? What still needs changing?

Share aloud, point, leave a note or speak privately with an adult.
