

Minimum successful product

Start here: Fold one sheet into four parts: question, explain, audience task, and limit. This paper version can be your final product.

Enough to succeed

One question; three evidence-backed ideas; a small system map; two responses compared; one 5–8 minute audience task; one honest limit. Use two or three different sources. Each person explains one connection.

Equal-status formats

Paper exhibit, tabletop model, poster, short live workshop, simple slides, or audio with a paper choice card. Digital building and film editing are optional only if time remains.

Evidence passport

For each of three ideas: claim → source creator/title/date → supporting detail → limitation. Add a source beside the idea, not just in a link pile.

Stop rule

One question and one team artifact. Use existing Unit 3-4 research. Do not add a second topic or new production tool after the paper prototype is approved.

Our thinking · name / team: _____

Opening question / three ideas and sources / small system map / two responses and limits / 5-8 minute audience task.

We can cut... We must check... Each person can explain...
